I noticed when Mr. Watson was making his demonstration of the No. 79 and describing the locks, he used the most elegant language, and I did not hear expressions of that kind. Certainly there has been a marked progress in that line at least. And again. with the Agents of this Convention, we have all received a great deal of courtesy from them, and I hope some day to try and return it. 0. C. Rzn/es --I think that the idea of bringing the Agents to Dayton and meeting with the men in the Factory, and the exchange of ideas of men from all over the United States with the men in the Factory, is very beneficial to the Company and to everybody concerned; and I only hope that the next one will be very much larger, and better ideas and better views exchanged. jarep/z H. Crnm--Mr. Cleal has stated the principal thing that I wanted to remark. I have been eight years connected with this Company, and in all that time I have been known in almost direct connection with the Salesmen, and it is a most gratifying thing to look at the seventy-eight or eighty men here, and see really what a wonderful change there has been in the personnel of our Salesmen and our representatives abroad. We used to have a good many good lookers and a great many that were not. All of the old...
