However, these measures are not sufficient to deal with the financial realities that the Postal Service faces. Thus, the new revenue initiatives need to be put into place. And I believe that the customers are comfortable, provided alternative access is available, that is, as you point out, Mr. Chairman, as it relates to doing so-called multi-tasking, be it grocery shopping and pharmacies and so forth, such actions are likely essential to future growth, and the Postal Service needs to do as other outfits have been able to do, and that is, follow your market, so to speak. These new revenue initiatives, I think, can only enhance the financial stability that we need to get to. Senator C. Thank you. One of the biggest issues that the ARPER Congress and the Postal Service will face in the coming months is the question of whether delivery frequency should be changed, perhaps by eliminating Saturday delivery. How important do you think it is that the Congress allow the Postal Service to make the business decision to eliminate a day of delivery if doing so is deemed necessary ONER Mr. T. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. In my view, I believe the Postal Service has done a commendable job in involving all so-called stakeholders regarding the possible change in frequency, be it 6 days to 5 days or 6 days to whatever. I believe the Postal Service has done its homework in terms of conducting studies, holding interviews, completing its various opinion...
